Chiselle Vega began her real estate career in 2002 as a realtor with a nationally recognized residential resale company. Within months, she became a top producing buyer's agent, and soon transitioned into the new home building sector representing the largest privately held builder in the nation. Not only was she in the top 25% each year, she also retained an impressive yearly referral rate over 35% for each community she was involved with. Her areas of expertise include sales, customer service, buyer and seller negotiations, lead generation, networking, marketing, and market analysis. This experience combines to give her the tools necessary to develop long lasting relationships with peers and clients alike. At Verde Pacific, Ms. Vega brings her real estate experience into the commercial property sector where she's able to give Principals and Tenants a fresh perspective while involved in leasing transactions and marketing activities for Retail and Office. Chiselle Vega attended California State University, East Bay and currently holds a California Real Estate License.
