Nora Vigil has immersed herself since 1985 in the distinctively demanding real estate market of the San Francisco Bay Area. She has been involved in a variety of disciplines including project management, property management, asset management, leasing, acquisitions and dispositions.

Her very first project was the renovation of an office building in downtown San Francisco, and the process to have it listed on the prestigious National Register of Historic Places. Ms. Vigil went on to manage several prominent Class A properties for Bay Area owners and developers, and by the mid-1990s had responsibility for a billion-dollar REIT portfolio – 4.5 million square feet of office, retail, industrial, and R&D properties. The western half of the United States was her territory, demonstrating not only great traveling stamina but also the “bring it on” mentality needed to thrive in a challenging diversity of markets and jurisdictions.

In her current capacity, Ms. Vigil oversees the property management and brokerage functions of Verde Pacific Realty, Inc. From time to time, she lends assistance to the development process by providing research and financial analysis. Ms. Vigil received a bachelor’s degree in business from the University of Hawaii. She holds a current California Real Estate License, is a Real Property Administrator (RPA), and a Certified Property Manager (CPM).
